

EFFICIENCY AND LIMITS OF NON-INVASIVE HEMODYNAMIC MONITORING WITH BIOZ DEVICES

lecturer Camelia Scîrneciu MD, PhD,

lecturer Ioan Scîrneciu, MD, PhD

lecturer Marius Tecău, MD, PhD

Faculty of Medicine, University Transilvania Braşov

The heart is frequently involved in thyroid disease. Hemodynamic effects of this disease are very important in evaluation of these patients. This presentation is about the efficiency and limits of hemodynamic non-invasive tests. Hemodynamic tests are useful in evaluation of cardiac inotrop function. They are limited by underrating of oxygen consumption and overrating of peripheral vascular resistance.